GM auto workers strike at 12 plants

Bargaining talks to resume Tuesday

DETROIT (UPI) — Striking auto workers halted production Monday at 12 General Motors Corp. assembly plants nationwide as a cool to the automaker of about $18 million a day, with talks resumed until Tuesday.

Workers broke off contract talks at 4:30 a.m. EDT Monday following a 20-hour session and set bargaining to resume at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The first strikers hit the picket lines at 6 a.m. local time. They will get $65 a week in strike pay plus medical coverage from the union's $570 million strike fund.

"They don't really want a strike, but they want restored what was taken from them," said spokesman J. M. Conaway for local GM in Pontiac, Mich. "If there's to be a strike, it's the only way they can."

The just-expired contract contained $1 billion in concessions made in 1982.

Analysts estimate the walkouts by nearly 50,000 hourly workers will cost GM $125 million a week, or about $18 million a day. Dealers also expect an early setback on inventories.

"Most Cadillac dealers are all riled out of 84 models, and none of us has any inventory of 85 models," said Everett Ahlgren, owner of Ahlgren Cadillac in Hammond, Ind. "A strike will have a big effect on our business."

The union authorized local union strikes at 13 plants after bargaining failed to reach agreement by midnight Friday. Workers at selected plants officially went on strike then, but only a Flint, Mich., plant with 13,100 workers had weekend work scheduled.

One of the 14, Local 645 at Van Nuys, Calif., reached agreement Sunday night on a local contract covering about 4,000 workers, and most workers returned to work Monday.

Sources said bargainers were hung up on job security, the union's top priority.

GM refused to make any concessions, offering the 20-hour bargaining session, insisting that the job security portion of the contract be resolved before wages and benefits were discussed.

AW President Owen Bieber and Vice President Donald Ephlin issued a statement saying "significant differences remain between the parties on the principle issues."

Chrysler plants produce some of GM's hottest-selling models and house some of the union's most militant members. They are located in Dearborn, Mich.; Arlington, Texas; Wilmington, Del.; Bowling Green, Ky.; Sturtevant, Ill.; Metairie, La.; Linden, N.J.; Warren, Flint and Orion, Mich.; and two in Pontiac, Mich.

The remainder of GM's 550,000 hourly workers were in stay on the job, but without a contract were expected.

GM told 6,000 workers at a Fisher Body plant in Flint, Mich., not to report for work today because their compensation Bulek assembly plant was on the strike target list.

U.S. crew is safe after supply ship seized by Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy spoke by telephone Monday with the captain of a U.S. supply ship seized by Soviet authorities five days ago and said the five crewmen being detained at a hotel in Siberia were "safe and well."

In Washington, a State Department spokesman predicted the five will be released soon and questioned whether Soviet delays in notifying U.S. officials of the ship's seizure and allowing embassy personnel to speak to the crewmen violated a U.S.-Soviet treaty.

A White House spokesman said the 120-foot supply ship Freda K. was seized after it apparently wandered into Soviet territorial waters in the Bering Sea.

"As near as we can tell at the moment there was no hostility," deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said. "They strayed inadvertently into Soviet waters."

The ship, which delivers water and fuel to remote Alaskan communities, was seized by Soviet authorities Wednesday. But U.S. officials said they were not advised of the incident until Friday.

State Department spokesman John Hughes acknowledged the incident took place "in a fairly far-flung" part of the Soviet Union. But he said the Soviets were "a little tardy" in notifying U.S. officials and giving embassy personnel permission to talk to the crewmen.

"We want to see how the Soviet handling of the matter lives up to the consular treaty," Hughes told reporters in Washington.

U.S. officials said the Freda K. apparently was not damaged in the incident. The five crewmen were taken from the ship to a hotel in Vladivostok, a town on the Chukotka Peninsula of eastern Siberia.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Mark Smith said the embassy had "not been informed of the reason for their continued detention."

U.S. officials said the embassy spoke by phone Monday to the captain of the Freda K.

"We have ascertained through direct telephone contact that five members of the crew of the vessel Freda K., taken into custody by Soviet authorities Sept. 12, are safe and well," Smith said.

"We are attempting to secure the release of the five crewmen and arrange their safe passage home," he said.

State Department officials in Washington expressed confidence they will be released soon.

"It is not known when or where they will be released, but we have no doubt that they will be turned over," the official said. "When the embassy (in Moscow) talked to them this morning (Monday), they were all in good shape."

U.S. officials in Alaska said the Freda K. was returning to Nome through the Bering Strait — the narrow waterway that separates Alaska and the Soviet Union — when it was last heard from.

Sharlene's parents tell of her childhood

By CATHY THOMPSON
Universe Staff Writer

BYU has the $40 million quarterback and now Miss America.

Sharlene Wells, a junior from Salt Lake City, majoring in broadcast journalism, was crowned Miss America Saturday night in Atlanta City, Ga.

Sharlene's success was discussed by her parents, Robert E. and Elaine Wells, Monday at a press conference.

Her mother stated that Sharlene has always been a spiritual girl, asking to be told stories of Jesus Christ and of the premortal life.

She also told several stories about Sharlene as a small girl. When Sharlene was a young toddler, her father left her locked in a car for a few minutes while he went into a friend's house to see if this was anyone home. When he got back to the car, she had knocked out a window with a hammer that was left in the car.

As she grew up, her father stated that she was now a beautiful girl. Sharlene said she was a "beautiful girl" when she was a young girl.

Before becoming Miss America, Sharlene also held several titles including Utah Jr. Miss, Miss Salt Lake, Miss BYU, Holiday Bowl Queen, Miss Utah Valley and Miss Utah, which led to her present title.

Elder and Mrs. Wells show a picture of their daughter, the 1985 Miss America, in her younger days.

Sharlene's mother said her daughter has always been a spiritual girl.

Sharlene was the swiftest contest, and her reaction to the announcement was one of complete shock. Her mother, who was watching through binoculars, said "Sharlene looked like she was going to fall over."

Elder Wells said his reaction to the announcement was one of embarrassment. "Having a daughter stand there in a swimsuit, with everyone observing her, was unsettling."

Saturday night when Miss Utah was announced, Mrs. Wells and her heart stopped beating. She added that all the parents of the 10 finalists were assessing each of the girls. "I felt Miss Texas was her biggest competition, and when she was announced as fourth runner-up I cried a little easier."

Mrs. Wells said she will be coming to BYU to disown her daughter from classes this week. She also said Sharlene asked her business manager first thing if she would be able to resume the Homecoming Spectacular with Steve Young. Unfortunately Miss America will be appearing in Hawaii at that time, so she will not be appearing at BYU.

Sharlene also said she would miss performing with the Young Ambassadors.

The jury awarded total damages of $1.8 million to be split between Provo and Monticello Investors, while the Pride Roofing Co. was not considered a party to the action.

According to Glen Ellis, Provo city attorney, the Pride Roofing Co. was judged by the jury to be 10 percent at fault, but does not pay any of the cost of the suit, because it is covered by workman's compensation.

The remaining 10 percent of cost will be split between the city and Monticello Investors.

Ellis also said the lawyers from Denver and Salt Lake City who represented Godesky originally sought $6 million from the city and investors.

Since the accident, Godesky has been receiving several hundred thousand dollars from his employers as full compensation, Ellis said.

Devotional speaker is Elder Oaks

Elder Dallin H. Oaks, former BYU president and the newest member of the LDS Council of Twelve, will speak at today's devotional assembly at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

Elder Oaks was named to the Council of Twelve at the April conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints after serving nearly 3½ years as a Utah Supreme Court justice. Before holding that position, he served nine years as president of BYU.

A native of Provo, Elder Oaks graduated from BYU in 1964 with high honors in accounting. He received a scholarship to the University of Chicago Law School, earning a doctor of law degree in 1967. He taught there for 10 years after serving one year as a law clerk to Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court and three years in private practice in Chicago.

Elder Oaks has written numerous articles for leading legal publications and has published several books dealing with church and state relations, trust law, the legal, financial and criminal procedure.

Negligence ruling upheld in Provo shock incident

By JAY RUEBAUD
Universe Staff Writer

Provo City must pay $1.2 million in damages the Utah Supreme Court ruled, upholding a prior judgment in a negligence suit filed by a man severely injured by a 2,400-watt power line in the city.

Provo had appealed the judgment handed down earlier by a 4th District Court jury that found the city 70 percent negligent in the injuries of James Godesky, who had both arms amputated and suffered brain damage in an August, 1978 accident.

The city said it may have been negligent by allowing a live wire to finger near the site of a roofing job Godesky was working on.

The Supreme Court's decision upholds the jury's judgment that Provo was 70 percent responsible for the accident, while Monticello Investors, which owned the apartment building, was 30 percent responsible.

while the roofing work was going on.

The special court decision in the negligence case of Provo, so the city should not be held liable for damages.

The court, however, agreed with the jury's decision.

"Provo is correct that an employer has a duty not to expose his employees to unreasonable dangers," Provo was also correct that a more recent negligent act may break the chain of causation and relieve the liability of a prior negligent act under the proper circumstances," said the court.

"However, contrary to Provo's argument, proximate causation is generally a matter of fact to be determined by the jury."

The jury awarded total damages of $1.8 million to be split between Provo and Monticello Investors, while the Pride Roofing Co. was not considered a party to the action.

According to Glen Ellis, Provo city attorney, the Pride Roofing Co. was judged by the jury to be 10 percent at fault, but does not pay any of the cost of the suit, because it is covered by workman's compensation.

The remaining 10 percent of cost will be split between the city and Monticello Investors.

Ellis also said the lawyers from Denver and Salt Lake City who represented Godesky originally sought $6 million from the city and investors.

Since the accident, Godesky has been receiving several hundred thousand dollars from his employers as full compensation, Ellis said.

Laffertys' arraignment Friday

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA
Universe Staff Writer

Preparation continues as Ron Watson Lafferty, Dan Charles Lafferty and Ricky Martin Kaupp approach their arraignment Friday to the District Court.

The three suspects in the July 24 murders of an American Fork woman and her 13-month old baby were bound over for trial by Salt Creek Judge Robert J. Summison. Each is charged with two counts of capital homicide, two counts of criminal conspiracy and two counts of aggravated burglary.

Charles Allen Carver, a fourth suspect, will also be arraigned Friday. The court is expected to drop three charges against Carver if he continues testifying for the state as he did at the preliminary hearings.

Neal T. Wootton, prosecuting attorney, mentioned the possibility of an insanity plea from the defendants, but added that they had been no indication of such a plea. An insanity plea is possible, agreed Mike Epplin, the Laffertys' assisting attorney, but doubted they would take it.

The Laffertys still plan to act as their own attorneys against the driver and arraignments of Epplin and Summison. Epplin's role has been to advise them of procedural avenues available to them," he said. He added that his primary advice, to accept legal counsel, is not being followed.

During when to stop asking questions and what to be asked in the courtroom, Epplin said to representing themselves, Epplin said. Some questions and statements made during the preliminary hearings were "harmful, not helpful."

The Laffertys believe God will influence the understanding of the jurors and the judges, Epplin said in a telephone interview, and if no divine intervention occurs, that, would be God's will.

"Trial strategy," said Kent Willis, Kaupp's attorney, was the main reason his client did not follow the plea-bargaining path of Carver. Willis conceded a possibility of plea-bargaining in the future but added that no definite offer had been made by the state.

Wootton said the use of Kaupp's testimony is under consideration.

Finding an impartial jury should not be a problem, said Wootton. Whether an impartial jury can be found in Utah was an argument used by the Laffertys in fighting their extradition from Nevada where they were apprehended.

The Laffertys have accused "the system" of not being fair. "A fair trial will be difficult," said Willis, "but they (the Laffertys) have created that for themselves."

Epplin agreed, adding that finding an impartial jury would be difficult, particularly in Utah County, because of pervasive publicity, including mentions of "hot lists," news interviews with possible witnesses and other publicity regarding the murders.

The Laffertys have several options in the coming arraignment, and Epplin, listing a variety of motions they could make. Epplin and Gary Wright, another assisting attorney, are advising the Laffertys on court procedures, but their primary advice to the brothers is to accept counsel. Epplin said the Laffertys lack the expertise so crucial to their defense from that point on.

Barring any special motions at Friday's arraignment, the defendants will plead guilty or not guilty.

Get registered and vote, encourage ASBYU and College Republicans

By DEAN C. BARRY
Senior Reporter

With the coming presidential election, ASBYU and the College Republicans have been encouraging students to get out and vote.

Vote registration is important, according to Chris Curran, coordinator for Registrar and Election campaigns at BYU.

Curran, a junior from Nebraska, majoring in economics, said, "As American citizens, it is our duty to get out and vote." He and he feels people have no right to criticize government officials if they do not vote.

ASBYU President Bob Miller and ASBYU and the College Republicans are trying to solve problems of voter apathy by sponsoring a voter registration drive on campus.

"We wanted to provide a drive to get people out to register," he said.

Miller said that if people know how simple it is to register, they would do it. "It is as easy as writing a check you can't," he said.

According to Miller, the purpose of the ASBYU-funded project is to get people to register and make them more knowledgeable through speeches and debates from both parties. The project will follow up by actually getting voters to the polls.

"If we register them to vote and then the people do not vote, we have failed in our job," Miller said.

According to Curran, students ages 18-21 have the lowest voting record in the nation. "As the College Republicans sponsor drive, people will be more willing to vote," he said.

The voter registration drive will qualify a Utah resident to vote in the national election and as state voters. "As long as you keep voting and do not miss an election, you are always a registered voter," Curran said.

Out-of-state residents who wish to register can still do so, but they must go through different procedures than Utah residents, Curran said.

Out-of-state individuals who are registered to vote must maintain an abode in Utah from their home state, Curran said.

If a person registers to vote in Utah, he gives up citizenship in his home state, Curran said. Out-of-state students must file absentee ballots to retain registration in their home states.

If an out-of-state student registers as a Utah voter, his parents can no longer claim him as a dependent on their income tax.

Curran and the College Republicans will sponsor voter registration drives to off-campus housing areas.

Miller said, "Because of the nature of the school, individuals here should be concerned about the democratic process of voting."

"Instead of our age group being the lowest voting record in the nation, it should be the highest. And ASBYU is trying very hard to educate people at the home and get them people out to the polls."

Peres to meet with Reagan, Mondale

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres will meet early next month with President Reagan and Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale during a trip to the United States, Israeli Radio said Monday.

The radio reported that Peres will visit Washington Oct. 8 to talk with Reagan about peace and defense and economy. It gave no date as location for the meeting with Mondale.

Peres also will meet with U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz, though no specific dates were announced.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Spokes said, "We're in the process of establishing dates with the government of Israel for a visit by the prime minister. And we're looking forward to continuing that dialogue with the government of Israel."

Spokes said Oct. 8 is among the dates being considered, but said he was unaware of any specific dates being selected.

U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis said Reagan's decision to meet with Peres was unusual in the midst of the president's busy campaign for re-election.

He said Reagan was willing to make an exception because of the country's special relationship. Political analysts note the visit could also help the president's campaign.

"There is business to talk about," Lewis said. "Obviously the economic situation is the top priority for that (Israeli) government."

Peres became Israel's eighth prime minister Friday in a national unity government made up mostly of his Labor Party and the Likud bloc, traditional political rivals.

He will visit the United States Oct. 8 after Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, his partner in the coalition, returns from a 27-month occupation of southern Lebanon and ending Israel's prevailing economic problems.

Israeli officials say they are under pressure from the Reagan administration to implement stringent economic reforms in return for additional financial aid from the United States.

The country's annual inflation is at 400 percent, the debt to foreign countries exceeds $21 billion — the world's highest per capita — and prices in August skyrocketed by 16.5 percent.

The new government pledged Sunday to cut its $22 billion budget by 4.5 percent.

2 ASBYU officers injured in collision

Two ASBYU officers were injured late Saturday when the motorcycle they were riding collided with a car near 800 North and 400 East.

Steven Halsey, ASBYU ombudsman, and Mark Asplund, ASBYU attorney general, were thrown from the motorcycle when it collided with a car driven by Robert M. Reed, of 619 N. 940 East, Provo.

Halsey, the driver of the motorcycle, received only bruises and scrapes. Asplund suffered bruises and abrasions, an ankle injury and a head injury that required stitches.

Reed and the two passengers in his car were uninjured.

According to police reports, the accident occurred at approximately 11:15 p.m. as both vehicles were eastbound on 800 North with a second car between them. The collision occurred when Halsey attempted to pass the second car, which was turning right, and Reed's car — which was turning left.

Damage to Halsey's motorcycle was estimated at $250, while Reed's car sustained damages totaling $320.

Halsey and Asplund were treated at the McDonald Health Center and released.

UTech renaming won't affect technical emphasis of school

By STEVEN J. HANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

A proposed new name for Utah Technical College at Provo-Orem will be a name change only, not a change in the college's mission, said UTC President J. Marvin Hight.

Hight reemphasized his support of the change during this month's Institutional Council meeting. The proposal would change the name either to Utah Valley College or to Utah Valley Community College.

A name change is a "positive move in the right direction," he said. "It is in the best interest of the school and especially the community of Utah Valley."

However, the State Board of Vocational Education opposes a name change, said Linda Walton, UTC news and public information director. The board fears that a name change would de-emphasize the vocational education offered at UTC.

Walton said any fear the college's objectives will change with the name is erroneous. The statutory ratio of course offerings, which requires 75 percent of the courses to be vocational, will remain intact.

Hight said the college's major thrust is vocational and technical training. He said the council must help alleviate any fear that a name change could negatively affect the institutional programs of the college.

"We will spend time to educate the people in connection with the change," he said. With the absence of the word "technical," persons may mistake the school for a junior college.

"Many people in the state do not perceive what a community college is," he said. "They confuse it with a junior college."

Y police offer seminars on safety for children, dealing with sex assault

By STEFAN SCHETELAAR
Universe Staff Writer

A series of seminars dealing with sexual assault and children's safety will be held through September, said Sgt. Arnold Lemmon of the Investigations Division of the University Police Department.

Lemmon said there will be a seminar concerning sexual assault and how women can deal with it on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Viewview Trailer Park. The seminars are for all interested women above age 14.

A series of seminars will also be held at Heritage Hall, Deere Tower and Telsman Hall for all interested female residents. Lemmon said anyone interested in attending should call the University Police Dispatch Office for times and places.

A Children's Safety Fair will also be held Saturday from 8 to 10 a.m. at the Wynston Towers multi-purpose room. Lemmon said the University Police Department will be fingerprinting and blood-typing children.

He said movies will be shown for the children on how to deal with strangers and sexual assault.

Polygamy study shows harmony

A new study on polygamy within The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints during the 19th century shows most polygamist families got along, despite problems they faced.

James L. Ambrey, director of the Oral History Program for the Chasler Hall Center for Western Studies, interviewed 800 children, or parents who were practicing polygamists and found that most polygamist families "got along." "Tragic problems occurred in only five of the 150 families interviewed," he said.

Some problems developed because there were never any definite rules set up for practicing polygamy. "It's a real little about Africa polygamy where there were set rules about how one wife relates to other wives. But those rules were never really developed in the Mormon Church," Ambrey said.

Essentially what the families did was to adopt the monogamous traditions to the polygamist traditions, Ambrey said.

Can Cougars reach No. 1?

Outlook appears hopeful

By TROY STEINER
Asst. Sports Editor

As the BYU football team enters its march down the yellow brick road in its rivalry with the Cougars, the outlook appears hopeful.

The possibility of a national championship coming to Provo is already being kicked around this season.

The Cougars moved up from No. 8 to No. 1 in the Associated Press poll this week, and should improve on their No. 6 rating when the UPI poll comes out today. And the way the 1984-85 collegiate football season has been going, with upsets almost every week, they could move even higher in coming weeks.

The highest the Cougars have ever climbed, prior to this season, was No. 7 following the 1983 Holiday Bowl.

Not only is this the first time the gridirers have ever cracked the top six, but it is the earliest in the season a BYU team has ever been ranked in the Top 10.

BYU was ranked No. 9 going into the 1979 Holiday Bowl behind former Cougar quarterback Steve Watson. The Cougars made it to No. 8 midway through the 1981 season, but consecutive losses to UNLV and Wyoming sent them plummeting in the ratings.

Some feel BYU has a shot at reaching No. 1, and others disagree. The consensus of the football community is to not speculate on such an honor so early in the season.

BYU coach LaVell Edwards said, concerning a national championship: "It's too early to tell. It's too early to worry about position. We just have to go, ready to play every game."

When BYU defensive tackle Jim Herrmann was asked about the possibility of finishing the season in the No. 1 spot, he said, "Maybe we shouldn't comment on that. Whatever happens, happens."

"It's a long season," said Cougar quarterback Robbie Brock. "We'll just take one game at a time—we're not worrying about it."

BYU linebacker Leon White said, "I'm not sure how it will go. I'm happy to be at No. 6 right now. It's not the main goal—we want to win the WAC and the Holiday Bowl."

"To go undefeated is a goal—yeah," said wide receiver Adam Haysbert. "But we need to take our games one at a time."

Reaching the pinnacle in the polls for BYU isn't as unlikely as it has been in past years. There are only six undefeated teams, including the Cougars, currently in the Top 10. And the other undefeated squads have some tough games ahead of them.

The undefeated teams are Nebraska, Texas, UCLA, Boston College and Clemson. These squads either play each other or another Top 20 team this season.

Nebraska has Oklahoma and Oklahoma State as conference foes; Texas will play Oklahoma and Texas Tech; UCLA must face Nebraska, Washington, USC and Arizona State; and Boston College has West Virginia and Penn State.

Clemson plays Georgia on Saturday, but the Tigers have received bad news. They were ruled ineligible for the UPI weekly Top 20 and national championship in 1984 because of NCAA and Atlantic Coast Conference violations.

By agreement with the American Football Coaches Association, the action was taken Monday. UPI and NCAA Executive Director Charles McDevitt have agreed to exclude all teams from the UPI college football ratings that are ineligible for television and post-season play because of conference sanctions, beginning with today's ratings. After Saturday's 36-15 win over Tulsa, John Cooper, Hurricane head coach, was asked if BYU had a national championship caliber team. "In my mind they do," he said. "If

Miami remains undefeated

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Dan Marino threw three touchdown passes and the Miami Dolphins held off a late Buffalo rally Monday night in putting a 21-17 victory over the Bills.

Marino, a second-year pro who made his first start last season against Buffalo, threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Nat Moore at 4:33 of the third quarter to give the Dolphins a 14-10 lead. Marino's 21-3 advantage, Buffalo cut into Miami's lead with less than four minutes left in the third quarter. The Bills, on their first sustained drive of the game, went 80 yards in 18 plays with rookie running back Speedy Nolet driving over from 1 yard at the Buffalo 21. The Bills moved downfield and scored, cutting the Miami lead to 21-17 when quarterback Joe Ferguson, dodging a Miami blitz, threw a 37-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Julius Dawkins.

3 Soccercats named all-tourney on road trip

By TOM WALTON
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU men's soccer team finished its six-game road trip Saturday with a 2-1 victory over San Diego in the UNLV Rebel Classic in Las Vegas. Friday night the Cougars were shot out by Fullerton State 5-0 in the first game of the tournament.

Three players named to the all-tourney team: 200-pounder Bruce Wilson, sophomore Richard Pineda and forward Olin Loe were honored for their play.

According to Cougar head coach Jim Dussara, it was a real boost for the team to end the road swing with a win. "It's a nice feeling to come back from this long road trip with a victory," he said.

BYU got off to a fast start against San Diego. Freshman Robert Edwards scored the first Cougar goal at only :20 into the contest after taking a pass from Nelson Gonzalez. San Diego came back with a tying goal early in the second half.

However, the Cougars were not to be denied on this occasion. Later in the match, another Edwards attempt on goal was blocked by the San Diego goalie, but Loe gathered in the rebound and scored the winning goal with a "banana shot" from the side with only 1:25 left in the game.

For goalie Gary Niedermeyer, it was another impressive performance as the freshman made five saves in the match.

Friday, BYU found itself matched against a very strong Fullerton State contingent. Victory was a hard-fought battle as the contest went to double overtime.

Sam was a factor in the first Fullerton State goal as the goalie could not pick up the ball in time. The second goal came as a result of poor marking by the Cougars.

"We had two or three good opportunities to score, but we just failed to make the play," said Dussara.

BYU ended with a 2-4 record on the road trip, but Dussara felt encouraged despite the losing record. "I feel satisfied with our effort, but like most coaches, I'd like to win more games," he said.

"I think the first time that I can remember the score being so low," he chuckled. "We used to get beat by four or five goals each game. We are now competitive for each team we play."

One factor that does concern Dussara is his team's defense. "We need to mark a lot tighter than we did," he said.

There were seven freshmen on the Cougar roster, and freshman has played a large role in BYU's slow start this year.

"Our players need more experience, and as we get more experience, we'll be a good team," said Dussara. "There's a big difference between high school and college competition."

BYU came back from the trip in good health. Freshman Michael Fife sustained the only injury of note—an ankle sprain—and he'll be out for a week to 10 days.

The Cougars will be in action at home this Friday against Utah. Dussara expects a good performance from his team. "I don't believe Utah should give us too much trouble." Game time is 7 p.m. at Hawk Field.

Dussara is preparing his squad for the upcoming Oct. 6 home contest with UNLV. The Runnin' Rebels are ranked No. 4 in the West Coast. "The UNLV game will be our big contest of the year," he said.

Y Intramurals offers programs for all students

By TOM WALTON
Universe Staff Writer

Not all BYU students have the chance to compete in front of 65,000 fans in Cougar Stadium, but the intramural program provides an opportunity for everyone to participate in athletics.

An estimated one-half of the student body takes part in at least one of the 70 activities sponsored each year by the Intramural Office.

"We want to give students a break from their studies — give them some physical activity," said Lee Gibbons, supervisor of intramural activities.

Compared with other schools, BYU's program is impressive. "By

far few are the largest in the state," Gibbons said. "And I would say that we are one of the 10 largest in the nation."

Flag football, basketball, softball and volleyball are the four most popular sports in the program. Flag football has 535 teams registered to play. Last winter more than 500 teams participated in intramural basketball, and there were 150 more on hold because the facilities would not accommodate them.

"That is our biggest problem," said Gibbons. "We have excellent facilities. Most universities would give their right arms to have nine basketball courts, but with the number of teams participating here, it's just not enough."

To combat this, games are scheduled at every possible hour. But during winter semester there are many conflicts with the minor leagues. The best way to get around the problem is to sign up as early as possible, Gibbons said.

The activities provided by the Intramural Office are sports oriented, but an effort is made to appeal to everyone. Students have the opportunity to play in such non-athletic events as chess, backgammon and College Bowl, a question-and-answer game.

Gibbons is always looking for ways to improve the program and bring in new activities. The early morning and evening aerobics program is started just 10 months ago.

In the past, sessions of aerobics draws more than 150 participants every morning. The 2 p.m. session brings in anywhere from 250 to 350 exercisers.

"We have to close the doors at 3:50," said Gibbons. "We just can't hold any more than that."

In two weeks, the Intramural Office will be sponsoring a new program at BYU called "Ultimate Frisbee," which will be run on a trial basis.

"It's a non-contact sport with the speed of ice hockey," said Gibbons. "That's the only way I can describe it. There is no break in the action. The Frisbee hits the ground, the other team picks it up and starts to run and the play."

Ultimate Frisbee is popular at other schools, especially in California, where Gibbons picked up the idea.

"We're trying to get at least eight good teams to play in this year and such some interest in the sport," he said. "It will be played at the same location as flag football on Tuesday nights so the students can see what it is like."

There will be a meeting on Sept. 24 for all those interested in ultimate Frisbee.

"One thing that sets us apart from others with programs this size is that we only have one full-time person working here," Gibbons said. "Other schools have four or five, I use graduate students here, and it's a good experience for them."

Brend Gibbons, there are six graduate assistants and 25 supervisors directly involved with the program at intramurals. There are also more than 40 officials for the various sports.

"We just want to see the students down here playing," said Gibbons. "The flurry of intramural activity gets under way in late August with flag football, soccer and basketball. Frisbee begins Sept. 18. On Sept. 25, men's and women's volleyball and coed basketball begin."

For individual competitors, a bicycle race is scheduled Sept. 22. Basketball singles begin on Sept. 25.

Florida fires Pell after NCAA probe

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The beleaguered regime of University of Florida football coach Charley Pell has ended, unable to overcome charges by the NCAA that his program committed 107 rules violations.

Pell, 43, who came to Florida in 1979 and guided the Gators to four consecutive bowl appearances, was fired at 4 p.m. Sunday, said university President Marshall Criser.

"I am placing him on administrative leave to perform such duties as may be assigned to him by me or the athletic director," Criser said. "The administrative leave shall terminate at my discretion, but in no event no later than Dec. 1, 1984."

Pell, who resigned Aug. 27 with a request to finish out the season ending Dec. 1, was not available for comment.

Criser said assistant coach Gail Hall would temporarily replace Pell.

"Obviously, this comes as a tremendous shock to me," Hall said. "What we are concerned about right now is doing what is best for our players."

Criser cited last week's announcement by the NCAA that the Florida program had committed 107 rules violations, including illegal spring on opponents and the giving of gifts and money to players.

Pell came to Florida after two seasons as head coach at Clemson. His overall record with the Gators was 22-25-3. Florida is 1-1-1 this season.

Performances by six groups to headline 'World of Dance'

By MARIAN BELL
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students don't have to journey off campus to see dance from all over the world.

Starting Wednesday, six dance companies will perform in the de Jong Concert Hall, H1C, as the annual World of Dance returns.

Gary Hopkinson, promotional director for the Dance Department, said the program will feature the best dance from the companies' repertoires.

Four major touring groups that will be performing: International Folk Dancers, Ballroom Dance Company, Hoveco's Company and Theater Ballet. Lee and Linda Whitefield, the U.S. Professional National Champions, will also appear.

"We've gone back to the repertoire that we put on during. We select their best dances, and we put them on this show because once a year," said Hopkinson.

"We're presenting what we're showing the rest of the world. And we're making it available to anyone who wants to come see it." He said the variety of art forms makes the concert enjoyable for everyone.

The International Folk Dancers, directed by Mary Bee Jensen, will perform "The American" which depicts the American West and culture when they travel abroad.

Mexican dances

They will also dance "The Birch Tree," which portrays the softness of the wind in the birch trees, a suite of Mexican dances.

The Ballroom Dance Company, directed by Lee Whitefield, will perform a medley of dances that are fast, quick and several different rhythms that they combine for competition.

"Destiny" (two-step) and the cha-cha will be staged version of the 1930s era.

"Patsy," a concept piece based on the 1930s era, will be performed by the Dancers' Company and directed by Pat Debenham.

The first will perform in the "Mush Dance," which is an abstraction of sporting events. Hopkinson said, "One of the things we do in our narration is ask the audience to identify how many sports they can actually find in the dance."

Theater Ballet, directed by Sandra Allen and Connie Iresse, will dance "Tandem," a ballet from the romantic period. The company will also do a contemporary ballet that is a comedy piece titled "Ballet for Larcie."

The Children's Dance, featuring 4- to 5-year-olds and directed by Chris Olfertson and Kathie Debenham, will perform "Lollipop Tree." The teenage group will perform "Cavities."

Precision dance will be displayed by the Congregation, directed by Claudia Rowley. They will begin with the routine "Strike Up the Band" and will be accompanied live by the Cougar Band.

Their novelty dance will be "Rock-a-Rolla." The Ballroom Dance Company, Dancers' Company and Theater Ballet will perform "Foolhouse," "Doo Wah" and "Kukabaka" respectively, which will conclude the show.

The popular dances in these numbers are adapted to the forum.

"Foodies" (ballroom dance form) is another staged version of the 1930s era.

"Doo Wah" (modern jazz form) is a concert jazz piece which has three sections: jazz dance, a spoof on the 1950s high school dance in the gym and the current popular break dancing.

"Kukabaka" (ballet form) is a stylized rendition of the 1930s.

The World of Dance will run Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, H1C.

Hopkinson said, "Dancers are going like wildfire."

Salmanders invade Dakota

GOODRICH, N.D. (UPI) — Thousands of slithering, slimy salamanders have invaded central North Dakota, turning highways into mud ponds and sending shivers up the spines of revolved residents.

"They're ugly and they're everywhere," Arnold Urush said. "They're also tough. They said that some towns they have to be washed with a shovel or a hose to be killed."

Salmanders are scaleless, lizard-like predators of frogs and toads. They have a tail, stumpy legs and six pairs of toes.

"We usually see thousands of them run over by passing," Urush said. "Some places are just black with their bodies."

Thousands of numbered cards, many grumpy and worn, be bound on several miles the makeshift but that houses the Cheyenne District Marriage Agency at Peking's Altar of the Sun park.

Each bears a photograph of the marriage candidate and data on age, height, monthly salary, type of work, class background, previous marriages — and last but not least — qualities sought in a mate.

"I don't have any special requests, as long as we can love each other, live together and understand each other," a 28-year-old bureaucrat wrote in his registration card after paying the $1 fee.

On the back of his card several women had filled in their registration numbers, a hint he had married with a check (X) to for a meeting, a cross (no meeting desired), or a triangle (I'll think about it).

"If one person stays single it's absolutely a personal matter, but when hundreds of thousands of people over 30 remain single, it becomes a social problem," said Xu Juehui, 38, the agency's matchmaker.

Xu said about 10,000 people have registered with the agency since it started in 1980.

"About 6 percent of our clients are getting married," Xu told the China Daily. "That's not bad."

The marriage drive indicates a growing realization by China's top leadership that a good social life is important for people, even in a revolutionary society.

... and Y sings think they've got problems

PEKING (UPI) — Rock-toothed Mei Ping, 31, had behind her black, horn-rimmed glasses, waiting in quiet desperation for someone to ask her to dance.

The single's party at Temple of Heaven Park was almost over, and her hopes of meeting a suitable man were dwindling fast.

"There are a lot of lonely people in China," said a young man, who stood watching Mei (a pseudonym) and a thousand other aging singles at the outdoor dance.

Smiling couples twirled by, their form glowing under the colored lights. Newly acquainted friends drank pop and tidied farts at dozens of tables.

The 11-piece amateur band from Peking's Communist Center played through the last waltz.

"Oh well," Mei said with a sigh as she headed for the bus home in her now-wet blue dress. "I just came to have a look."

About 100,000 unmarried 30-to-40-year-olds (see UPI, 120, 000 in Shanghai, and millions in rural China, where 40 percent of the population lives).

China's rampant divorce rates also mean many men and women are seeking remarriage — and have difficulty because of the stigma attached to divorce.

Complicating the problem for singles in China, where most marriages are still arranged by intermediaries, is the search of a suitable and social events where people can meet.

Recently, however, Chinese leaders, worried over the "marriage problem," launched an aggressive campaign to help China's millions of aging singles find a mate.

During the last of "Hong-tung" — the most famous matchmaker in Chinese opera — officials in Peking are spicing up the capital's nightlife with a slew of "healthy recreational activities" for unmarried people.

For example, hundreds of singles stomped and swung to the beat of Latin tango and Western music at a recent, officially sanctioned "dancing party" at the Temple of Heaven.

ASBYU wants to give students an education in the fine arts

By MARI BELL
Universe Staff Writer

New, old and revamped activities to educate BYU students in the fine arts are being planned by the ASBYU Culture Office this year.

"The Film Society is what we've really excited about this year," said David Packham, ASBYU Culture Office vice president, speaking of the planned activities.

The films will be shown in 2004 JKHHS. The new building has more of a theater atmosphere than the MARS, where the films were shown last year. It also has a seating capacity of 300 people, said Packham.

"We're only going to show block-buster movies this year," said Packham. Movies to be shown will be 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., with an additional midnight movie on Fridays.

This year the tickets will be available at the Wilkinson Center Ticket Office. Tickets will be cheaper with activity cards than without.

Tunes at Noon

Tunes at Noon on Thursdays is another scheduled event this year. Packham said it will "allow students the opportunity to eat their lunch with music" in the Congress Cafeteria.

The performances are scheduled for every week. However, the number of performers will depend on how many people want to share their talents.

Students interested in performing for Tunes at Noon should fill out an application at the Culture Office.

The Culture Office is also introducing Classical

South African choir to perform

The Durban Men's Choir from South Africa will perform in the Madsen Recital Hall, HAVAC, Thursday in a special noon recital. The choir, under the direction of Dr. J. John Pauw, will present a concert of South African songs, Negro spirituals and classical repertoire.

The 45-member, multi-national choir draws men from all walks of life and is touring the United States. The choir will also perform in the Assembly Hall on Temple Square in Salt Lake City Wednesday evening.

The choir has released several records. Their first being "In Penitence Mood" containing such songs as "All Through the Night" and "Deep River". The noon concert is free, and all are invited to attend.

Capt. Kirk holding up Star Trek IV production

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Don't hold your breath waiting for "Star Trek IV" to beam down to movie theaters.

William Shatner, apparently not satisfied with his on-screen promotion from Capt. Kirk to Adm. Kirk in the first film of the series, wants a $2 million off-screen "promotion" to a superstar salary for film No. 4.

Daily Variety reported that Paramount has put the project on hold because Leonard Nimoy ("Mr. Spock") has a clause in his contract that says Nimoy's salary must equal Shatner's in a "Star Trek" feature. Each man already gets 10 percent of the film's profits. Nimoy, who directed "Star Trek III," the fourth highest grossing film of the summer, was set to helm No. 4 as well.

Help offered in SWKT for reading, vocabulary

"Word Attack" and "Speed Reading II" are two new programs available for student use at the Career and Learning Services Center located in 105 SWKT.

"Word Attack" is designed to help improve and increase one's vocabulary, and "Speed Reading II" is aimed at helping one's reading comprehension and speed.

Clayton Conn, director of the Career and Learning Service Center, said any student can use these new programs in the center's new computer room. The department has anticipated a great demand for these programs, and the center has ordered three IBM Personal computers to help handle the load.

Conn said this service is free and available on a first-come, first-served basis for computers. Advanced reservations can also be made a day before use.

Showcase this year. According to Phil Christensen, director of Classical Showcase, it will not only feature classical music, but also classes from each department of the fine arts.

"It's going to have the full spectrum of what a classical showcase would entail," Christensen said.

Wide stage

Packham said: "If you ever go down to the Harris Fine Arts Center, you hear all this wonderful talent coming out of the practice rooms. So what we're going to try to do is bring that talent to the stage and provide a stage where the students can benefit from hearing their talent."

The showcase will be geared to the inexperienced audience.

The first showcase is on Sept. 29 and will open with 50 Suzuki-style violinists age 10 and younger. The second show is on Oct. 2.

Students can fill out applications at the Culture Office for Comco as Improvisation, which will be in the Wilkinson Center. This year students can apply for different dates if unable to perform for the upcoming show.

Art Gallery

The Wilkinson Art Gallery is also run by the Culture Office. The gallery is aimed at BYU artists who wish to exhibit their ceramic and sculpture pieces, paintings and other fine arts.

Kristine Ayres is the person to contact for information on the gallery.

The Art Extravaganza will be a "gigantic art show," said Packham. It will feature BYU artists' works in the ELWC Garden Court.

"Artists that want the exposure will get the exposure," said Packham.

sure, any students who want to see good art will go (to the Extravaganza) to see good art," Packham said.

"It's going to be a chance for the artists also to gain confidence in their work."

Signups for the Art Extravaganza will be Oct. 1-5. The Culture Office wants to encourage freshmen to get exposed to art and culture while they have a few years ahead to enjoy it on campus.

The planned events will give the students "the opportunity to gain an education in fine arts along with their studies," said Packham.

Club Week booths displayed in ELWC

Many of the organizations and clubs at BYU are gathering in the ELWC Garden Court this week as a part of Club Week.

According to Murray Blake, ASBYU Organizations Office executive assistant, Club Week began on Monday and is scheduled to run through Friday. It will involve presentations by the various clubs on campus.

According to Blake, the purpose of Club Week is twofold — to get spouses for the clubs on campus and to acquaint freshmen and upperclassmen with the organizations available to them, especially the types of activities they represent.

The club booths will be staffed by club members and officers each day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Interclub activities and competitions sponsored by the organizations office are scheduled at noon Monday through Thursday.

Students gather around some of the many booths on display in the ELWC Garden Court during Club Week. Club Week is sponsored by the ASBYU Organizations Office to provide more exposure for clubs on campus.

Feeling lost around campus? Counseling service can help

By GINA R. MARCUCCI COX
Universe Staff Writer

BYU is here to prepare students to work and live independently, said Bill Thompson, a counselor in Counseling and Interpersonal Services.

Counseling and Interpersonal Services started in the late 1940s with the influx of returning veterans. The goal of counseling was to reorient the servicemen and women to society, Thompson said.

The goals are similar today, but there are some new concerns. In 1981, Elder L. Tom Perry, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Council of Twelve, pointed out the change of concerns in a meeting for the Association of Mormon Counselors and Psychologists. He said between 1970 and 1980, the marriage rate in the United States dropped 17 percent while divorces increased.

Because of these problems and many others, the Counseling and Interpersonal Center has established workshops, seminars and groups that meet on a weekly basis to discuss problems such as these.

said Burton Kelly, a counselor at the center.

"Many students have never been away from home and feel somewhat lost in the crowd. They often feel alienated or lonely and are trying to cope with failure, not only in the classroom, but failure with human relationships," Kelly said.

The Counseling and Interpersonal Center comes in contact with about 5,000 to 6,000 students each year through their seminars and workshops. They also reach people through brochures and dorm meetings.

"We're here not with a separate mission, but to continue the mission of BYU. We try to help students learn to cope with and solve challenges and problems by building high self-esteem," said Thompson.

He said the counseling center offers a variety of workshops on eating disorders, anorexia, bulimia, weight control, usage of grasp principles to solve personal problems.

Students may find out what workshops are available and sign up for them by calling Ext. 4040 or coming to 149 SWNT.

Teachers' strikes diminish; 61,000 pupils on 'vacation'

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A teachers strike in Rockford, Ill., entered its fourth week Monday, but settlements in several other districts stretching from Illinois to the East Coast sent thousands of youngsters each to school.

In all, school bells failed to ring for 63,073 school children — 27,300 in Illinois, 17,100 in Pennsylvania, 6,250 in New Jersey, 6,200 in Louisiana, and 4,800 in Michigan.

An estimated 29,000 students in Rockford, the state's second-largest school district, began fourth week of extended summer vacation Monday due to a teachers strike that showed no signs of ending.

Tentative agreements reached Monday ended strikes by teachers in Illinois' Kildeer Countrywide District 86 and Sterling.

Elementary school teachers in North Chicago, Ill., who have been on strike for 11 days, approved Sunday a tentative agreement on a new contract.

"I feel relieved that it is over. The teachers could not afford to lose any more money," said Vernon Whitaker, president of the North Chicago teachers union.

A 14-day walkout in the Eastern West Greenview, R.I., school district ended. The school committee decided to honor a court order directing them to give teachers a 1 percent raise. The 56 teachers in the district serve youngsters in two rural communities 25 miles southwest of Providence.

Contract talks broke off in the Midwestern and South Orange-Maplewood, N.J., school districts. Negotiators in the Midwestern dispute talked for 11 hours until 5 a.m. when state mediator Jeffrey Fener suspended talks until Thursday.

Devotionals, forums could be history

When BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland opened his annual state-of-the-Y address last Tuesday, students and faculty heard a plea for greater devotional attendance.

Holland warned students that "if attendance continues to decline, the future of the series is in serious jeopardy," he said. To cease holding them would be an immense loss to all of us now here, and even more so to the students who will come after us."

Devotionals and forums give students an opportunity to hear distinguished authorities express their thoughts and ideas. Noted experts in a wide variety of fields come to BYU each year in order to share their wisdom and experience in order for students to become better prepared to enter the professional world.

According to Robert Webb, BYU assistant academic vice president in charge of forum assemblies, "The purpose of forums at BYU is generally to educate us in areas where we are ignorant."

While forums help students learn about other people, ideas and cultures, the devotionals help students to grow spiritually.

Ron Hyde, BYU assistant executive vice president in charge of university relations, which include devotionals, says the administration is studying a number of solutions to the attendance problem. Among those is a return to closing down the library, Cougarcat and bookstores during devotional times in order to encourage students and faculty to attend devotionals.

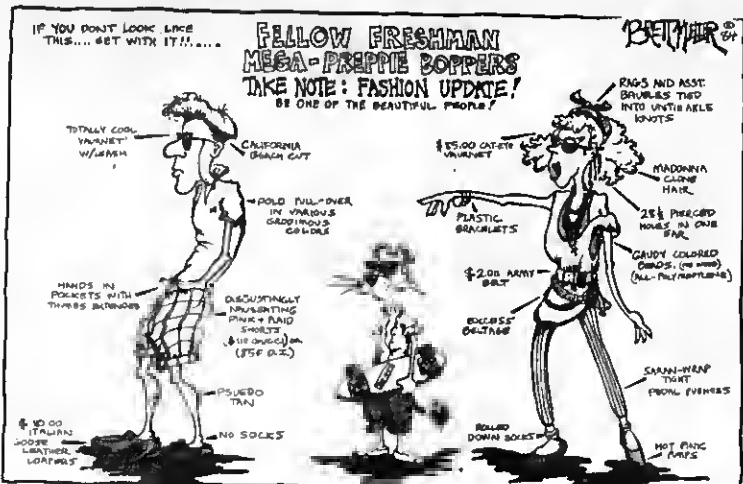

However, Hyde pointed out the administration favors the "teach them correct principles and let them govern themselves" approach. Only 15 years ago, devotionals were scheduled every Tuesday and forums every Thursday. General authorities of the LDS Church were scheduled to speak to students and faculty four times a month. Now BYU faces the possibility of no devotionals and forums and having general authorities speak only at the 14 State Fairs each month — if we're lucky.

The administration is trying to find ways of getting more support from the student body. Perhaps one good way to get more students and faculty into the Marriott Center on Tuesdays and Thursdays is to recruit Steve Young, Layell Edwards, Danny Ainge, Johnny Miller and other prominent BYU athletes. At least students packed the Marriott Center and Cougar Stadium for such personalities in the past.

While it may be unrealistic to expect a packed Marriott Center for each devotional and forum, it would be encouraging to speakers to see more than the average 5,000 to 6,000 students who now attend devotionals and even fewer who attend forums.

BYU pays the market value to bring interesting and prominent speakers to address students and faculty at forums each year.

The Daily Universe encourages students and faculty to take advantage of the opportunity to grow spiritually and intellectually by attending devotionals and forums on a regular basis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Porno or beauty?

Editor: When the headlines announced that Vanessa Williams, reigning Miss America, was to have nude photos of her published in Penthouse magazine, the reality of the beauty pageant business and the pornography business became harder than ever to distinguish. Now that Penthouse has helped blur what little distinction still lies between the two forums, it is remarkable that BYU so fervently insists on segregating women students, faculty and the Church at large with yet another beauty pageant.

In principle, pornography is nothing but a beauty pageant in extreme form. Both are forums wherein women are reduced from self-actualizing individuals to a second class, subhuman role. Although both forums claim to honor and pay tribute to women and their beauty, both reduce women to the level of a desirable physical object. People who look at, pay for, and pay attention to beauty pageants and pornography are encouraged to view these "non-sexed" women as merely a physical ideal at best or an expendable sexual object at worst. Both forums encourage both women and men to view physical beauty as a woman's highest ideal. Both teach that being beautiful, sexually attractive and available. In short, both pornography and beauty pageants glorify womanhood as synonymous with physical beauty and desirability.

This year we are told that Miss BYU "must cooperate and appear in public appearances throughout the year," to represent BYU women and the student body. She must be single and not previously married. Interestingly, we are told that she is "encouraged to remain unmarried while serving during the 1984-85 fall and winter semesters, or she should give up her crown to the first attendant." In fact, our beauty queen queens are even asked how they view "the role of Miss BYU." No doubt this year's physical ideal will face equally degrading requirements as they are asked to be physically ideal rather than whole individuals.

We suggest to the ASBYU Homecoming committee that if BYU really needs an ideal woman to represent what female students at BYU should be like, the committee should eliminate the photographs and the questions about eyes and hair color, height, weight and roles. They should instead select Miss (Mrs.) or divorced Brigham Young University the same way a Rhodes Scholar would be chosen. They then hope all could achieve such stature.

However, if selecting Miss BYU must remain a beauty contest, we would hope all self-respecting BYU women would voluntarily refrain from participating in this unworthy event.

Capable leader

Editor: In his Sept. 13 issue, The Daily Universe expressed the opinion that the support Ronald Reagan received last week in Utah was "a display of a de facto two-party system in Utah."

No one who deeply respects a popular figure in Utah, but those who assume he is well-liked here better look at the facts.

President Reagan has continued to fight things like abortion, ERA and moral decay, while working to pull this nation out of the economic and military pit dug by Jimmy Carter. On last week's visit to Utah he eagerly met with LDS leaders. Although political motives were certainly involved, Reagan's respect for the Mormons is well known.

Walter Mondale, on the other hand, favors tax hikes, abortion and ERA. He has wisely chosen to criticize Reagan's policies, rather than draw attention to his own. When invited to Utah, Mondale at first refused, then was advised to make the trip. Only after prodding by the press did he finally accept to meet with church leaders in their effort to be fair to both presidential candidates. When the meeting was held, he would only stress his belief in separation of church and state. With competing issues like Mondale, it is hard to figure Reagan's popularity in this state!

Though predominantly Republican, Utahans are not afraid to vote for good Democratic candidates. We have had a Republican governor in more than 20 years, and Salt Lake's liberal mayor, Ted Wilson, is one of the most popular politicians in Utah's history.

Conclusion: Utahans don't vote for politicians; they vote for capable leaders who care about this state's concerns. If the liberals can't find candidates with those qualifications, the system will indeed fail, and we'll all know which half of the two-party system is to blame.

Who is 'best'?

Editor: In regards to the appointment of the new ASBYU officers, Rob Miller seems to think he knows what is best for the student body. Going on the premise that "students don't always select the best person," can't we also assume that the student body didn't know what they were doing when they elected him? If the person nominating the "best" person himself, can we trust his judgment on who the best people really are? However, if Rob really does know who the best people are, let's cancel next year's election and let him pick our officers.

There's no need to be embarrassed: Here's how to dress like the Y 'elite'

Amateurs at BYU? If you have been on campus lately you've probably noticed the rising number of students who are striving from what the masses call "normal" in physical appearance. What I am referring to are aberrations in clothes, hair, makeup, etc.

This phenomenon usually occurs at the beginning of every school year. But this year is different in that the number of students participating in the fashion revolution is on the rise.

Some men still wear blue jeans, cutoff shirts and short hair cuts, and many coeds with fluffy hair, jeans and blouses still roam the campus. However, a new style of dress is prevailing at BYU.

As this new trend came to my attention, I began piecing together my own observations on this important subject and came up with several bits of astounding information.

My observations led me to one conclusion: Of these people interviewed those that were embarrassed by their lack of fashion sense said they would go right out and conform to the new standards that are creeping on campus, if only they knew what they were.

If you are one of those "uncomfortable" and embarrassed confessions dying to know the new style trends and campus fashion state, pay attention and learn. You can join the in crowd with use of the following information.

HAIR Men: To be vague they should keep their hair short. Right now, 60 percent wear their hair very short on the sides and fluffy on the top. In other words, they're wearing a short Ken's Far-tridge hairdo. The other 40 percent wear their hair two-toned, that is dark on the top and bleached blond on the sides or just a crew cut.

Women: This statistic was an easy one to compute. Fifty-two percent wear their hair straight and one length. This can be described as the Cleopatra bob. The other 48 percent wear their hair curly, they push their hair up on top of their heads and let it go. If you don't get the picture, think of a wet French pouf.

CLOTHING Men: Since the new look in clothing series so much, no statistics were available. However, I will comment on the general look around campus. The groovy man wears a type of button double-breasted shirt and baggy pants. This is usually accompanied by men's sneakers on the feet. If you don't see this man in your travels around campus, you might come in contact with the man who sports Oriental clothing with the flared and wide of cuff sleeves.

Women: Women's fashions are even more "crazy" than men's. Because of the wide variation among their clothing to specific state are available. Many coeds wear a combo shirt-dress with a huge hip-belt. This top can be utilized in many different ways, such as with a mini skirt, with pants or as a dress in itself. Makeup and jewelry are another story. Combinations that can be made with makeup and jewelry number the sands of the earth. Trends in this area are going toward monstrous colorful jewelry. But this flashy jewelry goes well with the other items listed above.

Now that all of you in the "embarrassed" percentage of the uncomfortably unfashionable know what the new fashions are, you too can dress with the elite. However, that information comes with a warning because trends come and go with each new year. But if this still doesn't ease your suffering, you can remember that: Clothes don't make a man (or woman), the man (or woman) makes the clothes.
